Questions to Ask Your Spouse to Get on the Same Page About MONEY

Hi. I'm Josh.

And this is my wife Jenny.

We help people with money.

We've helped thousands of couples get back on the same page financially.

We have found, that usually, we start our marriage the wrong way.

People tell us to get on the same page about money BEFORE we get married by asking each other a bunch of questions.

But usually we don't even know
the REAL answers to those questions.

We think we are on the same page, but really we have no idea who or what the other person is all about when it comes to money.

So, you get married and you both say that you should have a budget and a retirement fund and you are...happy.

Naïve.... But happy.

Then life happens... fast.

Before you know it, you are 6 years into your marriage with kids, a dog, and a mortgage, and you and your spouse are NOT on the same page.

That might be putting it nicely.

If you are anything like most couples, even bringing up money means it's time to THROW DOWN!!!

Finances are a big issue
in our marriages.

But here's the cool thing...

It might not feel like it
but there is great potential to strengthen and heal our marriages by getting on the same

So, how do you get on the same page with your spouse?

Just like an orchestra, it's not about playing the same instrument.

The background of the image is a blurred, grayscale photograph of a musical score. Several staves with musical notation, including notes and clefs, are visible but out of focus, creating a sense of depth and artistic context.

But more about finding where each other is at and how you can play together.

To help you get on the same page,
take one night and ask each other
